100% participation required for successful course completion. For most people, the physical activity involved in a first aid/CPR course should not pose a threat to your health. There are a small number of people who may find the physical activities in this course strenuous. If you have a history of heart attack, heart conditions, respiratory problems, physical disabilities, are pregnant or have muscle, bone or joint injuries, we recommend that you do not participate in the skills practice and demonstration involving physical activity until you check with your physician. If you are unsure if you should participate, please call the office or speak to course instructor. Should you wish to remain in the course but cannot perform all of the required skills, you will receive a participation card instead of a wallet certification card.
